Why do we call it a 'hybrid' pot?

We discovered the best of both worlds by combining our native soil with a fir bark mix.

- Full bodied plants are field dug, placed into a #10 pot, and then surrounded with fir bark.
- Native soil retains moisture while fir bark aids in drainage.
- A slow release fertilizer is incorporated in the fir bark mix.

After 30 years of growing Emerald Green Arborvitae we find this harvesting process superior to all other methods.

- #10 pot provides a wider surface area to receive water
- Easy to load and unload, lessening transportation damage
- Plants are just the right weight to minimize blow over
- New roots have room to grow and thrive
- Happy plants, fewer returns, happy customers
